1. War and Humanity

Is war an essential part of being human? Are we destined to fight? That is the central question that this year's BBC Reith Lecturer, Professor Margaret Macmillan, addresses in five lectures, recorded in the UK, Lebanon and Canada. In her series, called The Mark of Cain, she explores the tangled history of war and society and our complicated feelings towards it and towards those who fight, as well as answering questions from the audience. Professor MacMillan begins by asking when wars first broke out. Did they start with the appearance of homo sapiens? Or did they begin when human beings first organized themselves into larger groupings such as tribes, clans, or nations? (1 of 5, BBC)
